Dispersiones

Bring us closer to the contemplation of the possibilities that our environment has, as pictorial representation; That includes its fragmentation. The canvas as a "playground" is the concept of this series that contains unique pieces, composed in groups of 4 to 5 canvas and individually, all of it taken to visual experimentation; solid colors, transparencies and the raw spontaneity of spray paint

Blending with the precision of geometric form, this collection explores the shifting boundary between the natural and the abstract.

Realistic animal figures emerge from layered textures and fragmented structures, caught in moments of transformation. Each composition unfolds as a visual scattering—where form dissolves, reconfigures, and unsettles perception. At once chaotic and controlled, the series captures the fragile balance between instinct and structure, holding energy, motion, and quiet disintegration in a single frame.
